Indian Artifacts Dug Up at Dump Site in Daly City

By NANCY STANCILL

An eight-member archaeology team is completing work on the site of a coastal Indian village scheduled to be bulldozed soon to make way for construction of Daly City's garbage transfer station.

The 75-yard by 30-yard site is thought to have been a seasonal base for Costanoan Indians, who fished and hunted there about 2500 B.C.

The team, directed by San Francisco consulting archaeologist Miley Holman, will be paid about $16,000 by the Daly City Scavenger Co. The firm owns the Mussel Rock dump site, where the transfer station is to be constructed.

According to Daly City's Community Development Director Don Fleming, the city and scavenger company did not discover the existence of the Indian village until June.

Fleming said the California Department of Transportation and Highways was surveying the old Highway 1 area there when highway department personnel found indications of the site.

The community development director said the city and scavenger company, which will develop the transfer station, agreed to a voluntary "mitigation" measure of excavating possible artifacts.

"Had we known about it, the mitigation would have been a normal requirement of the Environmental Impact Report," Fleming said.

Fleming said the city will be forced to bulldoze away the site area, because the Central Coast Zone Commission requires that the transfer station be located squarely on top of it.

Original plans were to construct the station below the site, but the commission decided the new location was "more seismically stable."

Opponents of the transfer station, including members of the Keep Pacifica Scenic group, have contended that the transfer station should not be

DC Has 11th Slaying

A 21-year-old Daly City man, apparently killed while trying to fend off robbers, became Daly City's 11th murder victim of 1977 Monday night.

Dead of massive knife wounds in the abdomen is Scott Alvin Avery, of the Golden Gate Trailer Court, 7301 Mission St.

Police said they received a call about 10:30 p.m. from a neighbor, who said he heard moaning sounds coming from Avery's trailer.

"From the state of disarray of the trailer where the incident occurred, the victim may have been a victim of robbery," Daly City Police Lt. Tom Culley said today.

"We found the body nude on the trailer floor with massive wounds to the abdomen. There also were wounds on the arms, indicating he may have tried to block the blows."

Culley said blood stains on the walls and the floor of the trailer possibly indicate Avery put up a "pretty good struggle" before dying.

According to the police, two suspects were observed trying to start Avery's car. When they couldn't police said the pair departed on foot down Mission Street. The men were described as Latin males.

The homicide, although the city's first since early summer, makes the most ever recorded in Daly City in a single year.

One Day Care Center Funded

After a month of indecision, the Daly City Council Monday finally agreed to commit revenue sharing funds to one of two competing day care centers.

The amount was small — $6,000 — but the decision to grant it to the Bayshore Baptist Church's planned day care center left the controversial Daly City Community for Children's Services out in the cold.

City Manager David Rowe had not recommended funding of either center, but pointed out that the council had the option of allocating $14,000 in unappropriated revenue sharing reserves to one or both of the centers.

Anne Cooper and Toni Lake, who urged funding of the Bayshore Baptist operation, are former DCCCS employees. Mrs. Cooper had been fired from her post as DCCCS director for insubordination.

The DCCCS, center of controversy for its methods of administrative operations for almost a year, had come under fire from both Daly City and San Mateo County. Daly City has contributed almost $180,000 in revenue sharing to the operation.

Councilman Tony Giammona referred to Daly City's past support of the DCCCS as he voted against the $6,000 allocation to the Bayshore Baptist proposal. Giammona said he believed that the city intended "to get out of child care."

He cautioned that the city might find a situation where the state and county would leave Daly City as the sole support of an operation.

Giammona was the only councilman to vote against the $6,000 allocation. Mayor Albert Teglia was absent. Mayor Pro Tem William Schumacher said the Bayshore Baptist Church was not asking for operations support, but for a small sum to improve the church's grounds as a play yard.

"I would like to see a little competition," said Schumacher, noting that the DCCCS now provides Daly City's only day care center.

Councilman McRobert Stewart said day care is needed in the Bayshore area. Councilman Victor Kyriakis said if the city had helped one day care operation, it could help a second one get started.

Mrs. Cooper said the center has received $8,000 from the county for its first three months of operation and hopes to be self-supporting. She said the facility will open in January

No Commitment on Broadmoor Chief Johnson Won't Yield Seat to Be Officer

Broadmoor Police Commissioner Wayne Johnson has denied strongly a widespread rumor that he intends to resign his commission seat to seek a position in the Broadmoor Police Department.

"I categorically deny that I am looking for a job as chief of police, lieutenant, patrolman, janitor or anything else," Johnson said Monday.

Johnson, who is a repair supervisor for Pacific Telephone and serves as a reserve volunteer with Colma's Police Department, said he will continue as a police commissioner in Broadmoor.

As a result of elections last week, Johnson will be the veteran commissioner when Commissioners-elect Randy Wall and Joseph Fillo take office before Nov. 25.

The three commissioners have pledged to get the Broadmoor department underway by the time the service contract with Daly City expires Feb. 28, 1978.

Wall and Fillo said they hope to resume independent operations by June 1, but Johnson doesn't believe it can be accomplished by that date.

"There are too many things to be done," he said.

The Broadmoor Police Department ceased to function last December, when the police district's liability insurance was cancelled.

The three commissioners acknowledged that there is an active candidate for a new police chief to replace Bill Beard.

Beard, now a watch commander under the Broadmoor-Daly City contract, is not expected to take command of the new department.

Beard, who has declined comment on the matter, originally was hired by defeated commissioners Jack McCloskey and Dean Davenport.

"I was not in favor of hiring Bill Beard to start with, and I do not feel he knows how to deal with people," Johnson said.

"He uses Stone Age principals of management."

Ironically, the prime candidate to replace Beard is a Broadmoor resident who almost was hired in 1976, rather than Beard.

William J. Noonan, who lives on Maddux Drive in Broadmoor (unincorporated Colma) said he has expressed a strong interest in the chief's position to each member of the new commission.

Noonan, who said he currently is employed in "investigations" for the San Francisco State University Police Department, said he has not had a response, "one way or another."

Noonan, 40, has lived in Broadmoor 20 years and previously has served as an acting lieutenant for the Foster City Police Department and a lieutenant in the Larkspur Police Department.

"Bill Noonan is interested and I am receptive as I would be to many people who possess his qualifications and previous experience," Johnson said.

Johnson added that when Noonan was interviewed by a professional review board in the 1976 application procedures, "Bill Noonan came out No. 1."

Fillo and Wall, however, were more noncommittal about prospective hiring of a new chief.

Fillo said he expects other candidates for the post will put in applications that the commission will consider.

Wall said, "I don't know what we're going to do with Bill Beard yet."

However, Wall added on the question of Noonan, "I didn't say we weren't considering him."

Noonan said he served as

Helping Parents in 'Crisis' With Their Teen-agers

Coping With a Bad Situation

By JANET PARKER

For one parent a child's untidy room was a major crisis.

Another parent couldn't cope with a teen-age son, who was smoking marijuana and encouraging his younger brother to do the same.

JOYCE BROTHERS

... The other one

Yet another parent simply needed the shoulders of other parents to lean on.

Parents who need to talk about their hopes, fears, successes and failures in raising children are gathering every Thursday at Peninsula Hospital from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Social worker Joyce Brothers — not THE Joyce Brothers of sex counseling, book and Johnny Carson Show fame — calls it a "support group for parents."

"It's just a matter of finding out they're okay as parents," Ms. Brothers said. "It takes a lot of pressure off them."

"They're so glad to find out other people are having problems with their children, too," said Grace Glang, a counselor for the group.

The PCC began five years ago as the first of its kind in the county. It meets 10 months a year as the names and faces of those participating change. Some parents have been attending off-and-on for two years.

Several mothers who originally participated when problems with their children became overwhelming since have become parent counselors who lead many discussions and ease the way for reluctant first-time participants.

"We wanted to provide a place where parents could let it all hang out," Ms. Brothers said. She said she saw a need for parents to share ideas about handling difficult situations.

One mother was horrified, she recalled, because her son was using marijuana. She went to a PCC session, discussed her problem and got a lot of reassurance in return that she wasn't alone in her plight.

"It really changed how she felt about her son," Ms. Brothers said. "She was so relieved that it was not necessarily going to lead to heroin."

One mother of three teen-agers went reluctantly to located anywhere on the coastside site, because of the proximity to the San Andreas Fault.

Daly City officials will face a hearing Monday, when opponents Ruth Paige and Patricia Tatarian ask the Coastal Commission to revoke the transfer station permit.

Fleming said, however, that opposition to the site has not been based on the destruction of the Indian village area.

"The American Indian Council was brought in at the beginning and the recovered artifacts will go to it," Fleming said.

The archaeology team has braved the strong coastal winds for the past two weeks to work at the site, according to Cindy Desgrandchamp, archaeologist field director.

Ms. Desgrandchamp said the team, assisted on the weekends by volunteers, has excavated 23 units or pits ranging from two to six feet.

From the random pits, the team has recovered a collection of tools used by the Indians to scrape meat and pound roots and plants.

The discovery of the tools has supported the archaeologists' theory that the village was used part of the year for "exploiting mussels, shellfish, seals and sea otters."

Ms. Desgrandchamp thinks the village was inhabited during the summer season, but that the Indians moved inland during the periods of the year that sea life became scarce.

The team was expected to complete its site excavations Wednesday and take the artifacts to archaeology laboratories for further study.

The archaeologist said the team has tried to be unobtrusive about its work to prevent vandalism by curiosity seekers. Only one instance of vandalism has been noted so far, she said.

Ms. Desgrandchamp, during a reporter's visit to the site Friday, pointed out darker soil layers between light sand areas in open pits indicating the site was used seasonally.

The dark areas constitute the midden, or "soil that was altered due to human beings living there."

Ms. Desgrandchamp did not expect to find Indian skeletons and the team has not so far, she said. She explained that six skeletons are classified legally as a "burying ground." In such cases, the state probably would protect the site from destruction.

"Even with only one or two burials, the Indians could make a case for keeping it intact," she believes.

State laws require that excavation be done in the presence of an Indian observer and one has been present during the two week period, she said.

As an archaeologist, the field director said she would "like not to see it destroyed, but at least we can learn from the artifacts we have recovered."

Help Due Young DC Workers

A Daly City woman who has protested to the City Council for six months that the city's youth need its help in getting jobs finally got some action Monday.

The council agreed to appropriate $15,000 in federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act monies for a six-month pilot program to help prospective youth workers.

Mrs. Clara Haynes, president of the Daly City Community Multi-Purpose and Educational Service Center, Inc., said she was pleased with the council's action.

Mrs. Haynes and her consultant, Dr. Eddie Welton, had attended council meetings with as many as 50 youths to plead her case. She had said minority employment especially was difficult to find for youth.

Raymond Letsinger, assistant city manager, said the funds would cover CETA employees who will assist youths, ages 16-18, in learning job techniques such as interviewing, filling out applications and approaching prospective employers.

The program, which will operate Dec. 1 to May 31, also will include job development with private employers.

a session and broke down in tears when she got there. She said all she really needed was someone to listen to what she thought were terrifying problems.

One mother of five, Elizabeth DelCorto of San Bruno, said she found herself looking forward to every Thursday evening and a chance to talk over her problems with other parents. Now, one of her own children is a parent who also attends.

"The support of the group and getting someone else's point of view does take the pressure off the kids," she said.

Mrs. Glang pointed to the case of one mother who was distraught that her children couldn't keep their rooms clean. She went to a session and found out from other parents that the best way to deal with her "crisis" was to shut their doors. It's a minor conflict for some parents, but a big deal for her, Mrs. Glang said.

Chris Doty, a parent volunteer, told how she turned to the PCC for help when her 16-year-old stepson became more than she could handle. The big problem was pot.

"I reached a point I couldn't cope with it," she said. She went to the center somewhat reluctantly and by the second hour had poured out all her parenting troubles.

"I was really shocked at the support I got," she said. "Now, I'm in a position that I can help somebody else."

Not all parents who attend have teen-agers. Some have younger children who also pose family problems. And some who attend simply want to be prepared to handle difficult situations when their children reach their teens.

"We live in a time when people don't share their problems much," Ms. Brothers said.

The PCC has a 10-point checklist of philosophies — things like "We believe that parents can learn from children as well as children learning from their parents," and "We believe in discipline as a way of teaching appropriate and constructive behavior and not just punishment."

Crestmoor High School Principal Rena Bancroft

was the speaker for one recent session. The attractive 46-year-old woman never has been a parent, however she said she's helped parent many children over the years.

"You don't really know what it's like to be 16 or 17 today," she said. "Your children don't have safe childhoods anymore. They may be happy, but they're not safe."

"They have to deal with things you never had to deal with," Ms. Bancroft said. "They're going places you've never been and can't go."

She said she can teach them to read and write, but she can't teach them how to deal with people who make demands they don't understand or aren't ready to handle.

She's found that many teenagers simply are afraid. One good student told Ms. Bancroft that she was afraid of going to college, because she would be leaving an environment that was so safe.

"One of the things we have not taught our kids very well is to cope," she said. "Our kids haven't learned how to live in a situation, adapt and make it fit."

In fact, she said, we are all part of a disposable society, in which it's so easy to get rid of anything that's unwanted. If it doesn't fit, or doesn't work, throw it out — like a TV dinner or a package of popcorn.

One mother pointed out that many parents haven't taught their children even how to take care of their toys. "I'm not sure what a good home is," one mother said. "In my estimation, it's a home that teaches a child to cope."

In an overprotective home, she thinks, the child becomes fearful when it's time to take over responsibility for himself, she said.

"We have to learn when to keep our mouths shut," another mother said.

One troubled couple told of fear that their son planned to quit school to work at a car wash. Other parents questioned the powers parents have over a 17-year-old to determine his future.

He might know more about his needs than his parents ever will, they commented.

"Your son may believe you want that diploma for him so much he's not going to get it," Ms. Bancroft said.

The No. 1 rule, she related, is never issue a threat with which you can't follow through.

Ms. Bancroft said she has learned from experience when it's worthwhile to fight for what she believes is right for a child and when to give in. A mother must determine if it really will matter 10 years from now if her daughter didn't make her bed today.

"You have to save yourself for battles that are really important and then win them," Ms. Bancroft said.

Farber Seeks Re-election

Pacific City Councilman Stanley Farber Monday night became the third and last incumbent to announce he'll seek re-election, then argued with his colleagues about the cost of voter pamphlets.

Farber was in the minority on a 3-2 vote to continue printing a 200-word statement of qualifications on voter pamphlets and charging the candidates for the printing. He was joined by Councilman Mark Savage, who said he would keep the printed statements but not charge the candidates.

Assistant City Manager Donald Jeffers was directed to look into a new type of pamphlet that requires no envelope.

In other business the council:

- Decided on an independent audit of the Coast-side Scavenger Co. books and will look into doing a performance audit within the next 45 days before granting any rate increase to the Scavengers;

- Approved Community Telecommunications, Inc.'s selection of Pacifica Community Television to do local programming but agreed that no rate increase would be considered before TCI fulfills all terms of its contract, including clear TV pictures and good programming.

Farber, who said he has no campaign manager and runs a "low-profile" campaign, called the cost of running for office "absolutely ridiculous." He said

Ward Will Seek a Second Term

John Ward, chairman of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, announced today he will seek a second term on the board. He lives in Burlingame.

The 37-year-old Ward said he was "enthused and challenged" at the prospect of continuing the board's recent record of action on major issues that had lingered unresolved for many years.

During Ward's first term supervisors reached decisions on San Bruno Mountain development; on health care delivery systems through Chope Community Hospital, Crystal Springs Rehabilitation Center, Cordilleras Center; on municipal court consolidation; and on the North County pre-arrestment detention facility.

"We have become a much more aggressive policy-making body," Ward said. He cited responsible fiscal leadership as his principal concern for the immediate future, because "San Mateo County taxpayers have reached the outer limits of our fiscal resources."

Ward said, "The county is embarking upon a new era in how we deliver public services. We have undergone departmental reorganization which is only a start. The next step will involve intensive program evaluation. I want to be part of that process during the next four years."

Ward, a Burlingame resident who represents the Second District, claimed he had "humanized the public hearing process during his term as board chairman to provide full opportunity for all factions to be heard in the supervisors chambers."

"More than that," he added, "I have followed up my campaign pledge to make county government more visible — to reach the citizens who do not appear at the meetings in Redwood City."

The board chairman said that during his time on the San Francisco Airport International Joint Powers Board of Control there has been improved communications between San Francisco and San Mateo County.

"We must continue to build this base of cooperation but at the same time keep the pressure on San Francisco officials who need to be more sensitive and responsive to communities impacted by aircraft operations."

Ward, the youngest supervisor ever elected in this county, is a member of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, the County Criminal Justice Council and the Local Agency Formation Commission.

He recently organized the County Charter Review Committee.

R. Dakin Makes 'Smokey'

Smokey the Bear, the four-legged embodiment of environmental efforts to preserve our nation's forests, will be made as a plush toy exclusively by R. Dakin & Co. of South San Francisco under a new licensing agreement between the company and the United States Forest Service.

The new agreement was announced by Harold A. Nizamian, president of Dakin.

Nizamian said he expects to have the popular brown bear in full production shortly after the beginning of 1978. Smokey will be featured in the company's upcoming spring catalog.

The Dakin product will recreate, in plush quality, perhaps the most famous bear in American history and folklore. It will stand almost 15 inches high, with a soft natural brown color.

Nizamian stated that Smokey will be available through "all normal sales channels." He expects the brown bear to retail for about $10.95.

The company president noted that Dakin already is familiar with Smokey. For some years, the company has been producing Smokey, and his companion, Woodsy Owl, as vinyl dolls and as savings bank receptacles. "But we believe the major market for Smokey is in the plush field," said Nizamian. "We plan to actively market this new product to all our normal distribution channels both in the U.S. and abroad," he continued. The Dakin president noted that Smokey the Bear is also popular in many foreign countries which have extensive woodlands to protect.

Smokey will join the 600-odd animals in the Dakin catalog, the largest line of stuffed toys in the world.

Samuel Chandler

Sink into an easy chair, get comfortable and let me tell you of a nightmare.

A long white envelope from Washington, D.C. was addressed, Dear Librarian. It read:

"The Office of Civil Rights of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (OCR/DHEW) has completed its survey of your institution in respect to your compliance with the several Civil Rights laws which this agency is charged with enforcing.

"Following are the findings produced by this investigation and the recommendations which result from those findings:

"Your library regularly employs in its professional positions persons holding master's degrees in library science from institutions which have been accredited by the American Library Association. Professional personnel are always more highly paid than are persons in so-called 'clerical' positions.

"This practice clearly discriminates against those lacking academic degrees; against holders of master's degrees in fields other than library science; and against graduates of institutions not accredited.

"Our examination of your book collection shows the following weaknesses and inadequacies:

"A large portion of your book collection reflects the values traditions, history and culture of a white, Anglo-Saxon, middle-class society.

"The collection shows a distinct sexist bias: too many of your books were written by males and describe the work, the accomplishments, the values the theories, and the judgments of males.

"Your book collection betrays an esteem for the 'scholarly,' the theoretical, the impractical. Hundreds of books concerned with highly specialized, remote, even exotic subjects fill your shelves. (The American Civil War is long since over; citizens in today's world have little need for your huge collection of materials on the subject!)

"The nature of your collection suggests that your library seeks to cater to an educated elite. This is discrimination of the worst sort inasmuch as all citizens pay... taxes.

"Your collection contains books that are critical of government... It is inappropriate that a public agency... that is supported by taxation should purchase and supply books that are critical of the very system which supports it. Government should not contribute to the support of seditious writers and publishers who attack government!

"An analysis of the population served by your library in respect to age, sex, racial and ethnic composition, employment, and other demographic factors, and a computerized analysis of your book collection... show that the holdings of your library reflect very poorly the clearly obvious interests and needs of your users.

'Count Your Blessings'

"It's 'Counting Your Blessings Time' Once Again!" will be the theme of the Sunday sermon at the Daly City United Methodist Church, 1474 Southgate Ave.

Preaching at the Thanksgiving Sunday service will be Rev. David R. Swope. The service begins at 10 a.m. On Nov. 21 the youth fellowship will meet at 7 p.m. to play pee wee golf in Redwood City. Counselors are Jay Pierce, Sally Spencer and Dennis and Barbara Hansen.

B'nai Israel Services

Sabbath Services will be observed in the sanctuary of Congregation B'nai Israel, 1575 Annie St., Daly City, Nov. 18, at 8:30 p.m.

The services will be conducted by Rabbi Ira Book, assisted by Cantor Salo Blumenthal, who will chant the liturgy.

One of the highlights of the evening will be the performance of the choir, accompanying Cantor Blumenthal. Richard Altman is choir director and organist.

Shabbat Services

Rabbi Ira Book of Congregation B'nai Israel has announced that Saturday (Shabbat) morning services commence at 10:30 a.m. in the Temple Sanctuary at 1575 Annie St., Daly City.

On Shabbat morning of Nov. 19, Book will conduct services using the format of a Torah study and discussion session.

To be read will be Parsha: "Vayetze." Young adults and Bar/Bat Mitzvah candidates participate in the Torah discussion and Torah reading. David Benjamin, a recent Bar/Mitzvah, will be called to the altar to participate in the Torah reading.

"Although extensive research shows that Americans today learn much from non-print media, that many have abandoned books and reading as means for obtaining information, your library spends an unconscionably large portion of its budget for the purchase of books and other printed material.

"Because non-discrimination is the law of the land, you are hereby directed to do the following:

"Inaugurate a new employment/employee promotion policy which contains no educational or prior training requirements. All employment and job advancement in your institution must be determined by a system of testing through which any individual, regardless of academic background, may seek any position available and qualify for it on the basis of scores on the test.

"The test must not be one that in any way favors graduates of any academic institution. (This office will assist you in the design of the test which you are to use.)

"Revise your selection... policy to reflect the composition... of your clientele. Your present policy of purchasing books that are impractical, scholarly, and exotic must be replaced... We think that you should use a method of computer-based selection, or you should use the lists of recommended books prepared by this office.

"You must begin immediately to withdraw from your collection the vast number of books which are clearly reflective of white, middle-class, male values as well as those books which are unfairly, even disloyally, critical of government and of the efforts and services of government.

"Any books of the kinds described above which you wish to retain as historic curiosities, as relics of an age of darkness and ignorance, must either be removed to closed stack areas unavailable to the general public, or, they must be clearly marked and labeled as inaccurate, unfair, dangerous, distorted, discredited, perhaps even subversive points of view.

"Failure to comply with these directives not only will result in your library's forfeiting federal aid funds currently received by it, but in severe penalties including fines and imprisonment."

It was only a nightmare recorded by Librarian Charles O'Halloran and forwarded to me by my colleague, John Perkins of Ingleswood, but it makes your blood run cold. It could happen here.

Ceremony Marks Harbor Take-Over

About 150 persons braved threatening weather to attend ceremonies triggering the take-over by the San Mateo County Harbor District of Oyster Point Marina Park operations in South San Francisco.

The district is assuming operational duties as part of a joint-powers agreement with the city.

Some $7.5 million — out of a total expansion plan of $13.5 million — has been earmarked to modernize the 95-acre site, which will include expanding the berthing facilities from 275 to 575, enlarging and improving the swimming beach, constructing a fishing pier, providing open landscaped picnic areas, replacing the existing breakwater and constructing a new breakwater for a second boat basin.

The park, according to John Steen, executive director of the San Mateo County Visitors and Convention Bureau, is "expected to attract another $6 million from outside investment for two restaurants, a ship chandlery and additional shopping facilities to provide the most modern marina in Northern California."

Mayor Emanuel Damonte, South San Francisco, said none of the funding will come from city tax monies. Low interest state loans, repayable only from project revenues, together with state and federal grants and San Mateo County Harbor District advances, will provide all necessary funds.

"Our decision to proceed with this element of the city's park and recreation facilities program," Damonte said, "was based upon two important facts: construction of the project will greatly improve the appearance of the area, reduce bay pollution and provide expanded recreational opportunities for both residents and boats, and the project will provide substantial property and sales tax revenues to the city's general fund but not require any city tax funds for construction."

Several city and county officials attended the Friday ceremonies for the joint-powers agreement signing.

Established in 1933 to foster increased county boating facilities, the harbor district's first move to develop Oyster Point started with a $65,000 feasibility study five years ago.

The Oyster Point expansion marks the first time that the commission has been involved actively in marine facilities on the Bay side of the county. Until this time, the district has devoted nearly all of its efforts to the development and operation of the Harbor of Refuge and the commercial fishing harbor at Pillar Point.

John Condon, a San Mateo city councilman and vice president of the convention bureau, said, "With the visitor industry's economic impact here dramatically increasing annually, we must constantly work to provide our total county visitor facility with new and exciting attractions such as Oyster Point Marina Park."

AT HARBOR CEREMONY

Attending recent ceremonies marking the takeover of the Oyster Point Marina project in South San Francisco by the San Mateo County Harbor District were: rear, John Steen, left, executive director of the San Mateo County Visitors and Convention Bureau, and Charles Boerio, president of the harbor district's board of directors, and, front, John Condon, left, a member of the San Mateo City Council and vice president of the Visitors and Convention Bureau, and Emanuele Damonte, mayor of South San Francisco.

Data Sought on New Blast Fence

San Francisco International Airport should not construct a new blast fence between a runway and Peninsula neighborhoods until first double checking the accuracy of the airport's present noise monitoring system.

So said the Hillsborough Town Council, which passed a resolution to that effect Monday.

The new blast fence is proposed at the start of a runway next to Bayshore Freeway in Millbrae and would be six feet taller than the present blast fence.

Airport officials claim the new fence would reduce the powerful takeoff blast from jets which presently interferes with auto traffic on the adjacent freeway.

However, several residents from nearby communities say they fear the new fence actually will result in more airport noise in their neighborhoods.

The residents claim this could happen if jets begin their takeoffs some 600 feet closer to the freeway once the larger blast fence is built.

Candidate for Sheriff's Job

A former San Francisco police officer who is promising increased jail facilities, beefed-up patrol of the beaches and a special "business help group" wants to be the San Mateo County sheriff.

His name is Warren H. Maloney. Monday he announced he would challenge incumbent Sheriff

John McDonald at the June 1978 election.

The 46-year old San Carlos resident says his experience as a police officer and his present work as a business security consultant for 43 companies in five states qualifies him to be the county's top law enforcement official.

Maloney remarked: "Sheriff McDonald stated that he desired four more years to complete what he has started. I submit that four more years is a long time for the public to wait for the completion of projects that are essential now."

These projects include, for Maloney, expanded facilities at the main jail in Redwood City and a new jail in the North County; a paddy-wagon program to transport prisoners to jails for booking; a complete takeover of patrol services by the county at the airport, with no interference from San Francisco; and more beach patrols.

Maloney says he is aware that the county plans to construct a North County jail between 1980 and 1983, but he added, "1983 is too long to wait."

The challenger says several police chiefs in the county have complained about the lack of county crime lab services and the poor conditions at the main jail. He promised to work to correct the alleged problems in these areas.

Maloney also promises to form a three-man special team to counsel businesses in proper security.

"Many of our businesses and industries are confronted with severe security problems that cost them hundreds of thousands of dollars yearly to combat," Maloney said. "I will form a business help group of experts to assist businesses in these problems."

Maloney has resided in San Carlos since January of this year. He moved from South San Francisco, where he lived for five years.

He left the San Francisco Police Department to open a bar "and make my fortune." But that failed; so, he went into private security work.

For eight years he was responsible for a security force covering California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Hawaii. Last February, he formed his own security company.

Exploring Can Lead To Future Careers

There are 9,000 Aviation Explorers in this country, about 300 here in San Mateo County.

The local young people belong to four airline-sponsored groups, or posts, and their exploring is mostly along the lines of future careers.

That's what Exploring is all about. It used to be that Explorers were upper-teen-age Boy Scouts who explored the wilds on camping and hiking and canoeing trips.

Today, Explorers are girls as well as boys, and most Explorer posts are career-oriented and sponsored. Group interests range from firefighting to teaching to aviation to dentistry to electronics to medicine.

Among aviation oriented posts are two sub-groups, those interested in "public service contact," and those interested in planes.

Explorer Post 747 is the latter group. It is sponsored by United Airlines, and its adviser is Dan Bogdan of United, a technical writer who has just passed the first-step test toward becoming an airline pilot.

Dan is only a few years out of Aragon High School himself, so he feels quite comfortable with the 15 to 18 age group as he guides them around the variety of career opportunities at United's San Francisco International Airport maintenance base.

During the past year, his active group made a flying trip to the Mojave Desert to see the B-1 bomber and the space shuttle Enterprise.

They planned a trip to the Boeing factory in Seattle, but that one fell through. They visited shops and airplanes and flight decks.

"This is an opportunity to explore," Bogdan told the latest crop of Explorers at a recent organizational meeting.

Then Post President Peter Bergman welcomed the crowd of 110 parents and youngsters to the meeting, and Vice President Dirk Koops narrated a slide show of the activities last year.

The pictures had been taken by another member, Mike Chew, he said.

James Johnston, director of exploring and public relations from the County Council of the Boy Scouts of America, then explained what Exploring is all about, from his point of view.

There are over 70 posts in San Mateo County, and more forming.

In addition to the airline oriented posts at Hughes Aircraft, Western, and United, the Sheriff's Office is organizing a small plane post at San Carlos Airport.

First organizational meeting will be held Nov. 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the sheriff's headquarters in the Hall of Justice, Redwood City.

Post members will have opportunities to explore police helicopters, visit the San Carlos tower, look at small plane repair shops and electronics, and get acquainted with the airport businessmen known as fixed base operators.

Beach Cleaning Fund Washout in Pacifica

By TERRY DAVENPORT
Does Pacifica need a beach cleaner?

Donna Starr of the Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission thinks so, and is upset that a fund set aside for a beach cleaner has been "raided," as she terms it, by the City Council for other projects.

Of $30,000 set aside in 1975 to purchase a mechanized beach cleaner, only $16,148 remains. The rest of the money has been spent on litigation by the city attorney and for a drainage project.

Tonight, the council is to decide whether to give $6,500 of the remaining funds to the Pacifica Arts and Heritage Council and to Friends to Teen-age Parents.

"I resent this," Mrs. Starr commented. "The beaches are a mess. You should see the beach near the Linda Mar parking lot on a Sunday. It's a regular party pad on the weekends."

Surfers taking advantage of the Veterans Day holiday on Friday agreed.

"Pacifica's beaches are in shambles. The broken bottles and cans wash into the water, making it dangerous for us," said one surfer, Ernie Hall of Belmont.

John Sharp of La Honda agreed.

"I don't like surfing in Pacifica. I wouldn't be here if the waves weren't so good today. This is a disgusting, dirty beach," he said, looking at the debris scattered along Pedro Beach.

Mrs. Starr is angry that recreation commissioners weren't consulted before the City Council voted to spend money in the beach cleaner fund on other projects. The money came from the federal government revenue-sharing program.

Since not enough funds to purchase a beach cleaner are available, she states they should be used to hire people to manually clean the beaches.

City Manager Don Weidner thinks talk of spending money on beach cleaning is premature, because Pacifica doesn't even own any beaches yet.

The city is waiting to hear from the state on whether it will be given a portion of Pedro Beach, the beach adjacent to the Linda Mar parking lot.

There's one catch: Pacifica will agree to maintain the beach only as well as it maintains other local beaches — which is not at all.

Although there are occasional beach clean-ups by local youths, the city has no regular beach cleaning schedule.

"I have been the Grinch that steals beaches. I keep asking if we can afford them," Weidner said, explaining that he had stalled a gift of Pedro Beach from the state to Pacifica by asking to what extent the city would be expected to maintain the property.

"My position is that we ought to buy the beaches and give them to the state. Then the state would have to maintain them," he added.

Currently, all of the beaches along Pacifica, with the exception of a few isolated portions, are either private or state property, thus, Weidner doesn't think Pacifica should be responsible for cleaning them.

Mayor Sidney Loran believes local residents feel the same way.

After council members did a cost study and found money would also be needed to pay people to operate the cleaner, they asked the voters twice if they would authorize an increase in the tax rate for the purpose of maintaining the beaches. The voters said "No" both times.

Loran said the council then decided the city wouldn't fund beach cleaning, but neglected to take the $30,000 out of the beach cleaning fund.

Another problem is that there is no beach cleaner that will clean beaches which are both rocky and sandy, as are Pacifica's. Weidner said the best equipment Pacifica could buy is a mechanized rake that throws debris into windrows someone has to pick up manually.

Since the $16,148 left in the beach cleaning fund won't go very far, the money probably will be used on other projects, such as the ones which will be proposed at the City Council meeting tonight.

Pacifica's beaches may have to wait until wealthier times.

Pedro Beach in Pacifica needs a good cleaning but the city is spending its cleaning fund.

Environmental Group Busy

Serramonte High School's Community Environmental Education Program has been very busy since its return from a wilderness trip into the Sierras a month ago.

They have been involved in a number of community projects, working as a group and also as individuals.

One of the group endeavors included a Haunted House for Halloween, built and managed by the C.E.E.P. group as a benefit for the March of Dimes.

More recent was a Trash-A-Thon Nov. 5. The C.E.E.P. group walked three different 10-mile routes picking up approximately two tons of garbage in Pacifica and Daly City.

Each student has an individual project. Not only are these projects beneficial, but they also allow the student to expand in a field that they are truly interested in.

One example is Cris Dewey, who for several years before joining the program was involved with the rehabilitation of birds of prey.

Her goal in the program is to build a portable aviary 20 by 40 feet long. The aviary will not only be used for a project with baby barn owls now, but also in the years to come for the rehabilitation of other Raptors (birds of prey).

Pacifica has a group of C.E.E.P. students working in the back of the valley on the Brooks Fall project.

Julie Seyler, Tom Siemer, Sarah Santa Maria, Steve Durkin and Dave Shopes are working with San Mateo County Parks Ranger Chuck Richards to plan and build a one-mile trail through the Pacifica Valley. With Richards' help the students are learning about the vegetation and wildlife of the valley, hoping that when the trail is completed they can invite elementary school children to walk the trail, giving them a guided tour.

Other students are also volunteering their time and effort for the community.

Scott Vogel currently volunteers at Thorton State

Beach. Clean-up and trail maintenance are his main responsibilities.

Clifford Chang holds a volunteer job at the Academy of Arts and Sciences in Golden Gate Park. He now is working in the taxidermy department, rebuilding a bird for display purposes.

Diana Prusoff volunteers her time two days a week at the Peninsula Humane Society, working on its Wildlife Rehabilitation Team, which enables her to care for injured, orphaned or stressed wildlife until they are considered releasable.

The Community Environmental Education Program is determined to continue an on-going effort to improve the community.

Your union-trained plumber who does your work expertly and efficiently, and the plumbing contractor who guarantees his work, is your best bargain for repairs, remodeling and improvements—and new construction work as well.

These craftsmen are now represented by the County Consumer Plumbing Service and Repair Group. The new logo of this association is shown here.

You can call on any of the service and repair plumbing contractors listed here and know that you are getting the skills of an insured, state-licensed contractor who will stand behind the work of his union employees. Members of Plumbers & Steam Fitters Local Union 467 of San Mateo County are products of our management/labor sponsored Joint Apprenticeship Training Program. It takes 8000 hours of on-the-job training plus 864 hours of related classroom work to become a journeyman plumber.

Don't accept anything less than the skill and knowledge these men possess.

For your plumbing, heating and cooling needs call on a qualified union craftsman working with a participating local contractor listed here.

Lorvan, Fulford Run Again in Pacifica

Two Pacifica council members, Sidney Lorvan and Janice Fulford, will seek re-election in March, they have announced.

JANICE FULFORD
Councilwoman

council member whose term expires next March, said he is undecided.

Three council slots will be up for grabs at the March 7 election. The filing period is Dec. 8 through 29. Lorvan, the present mayor, said he believes growth in Pacifica will be a major campaign issue.

SIDNEY LORVAN

"I think we're all interested in protecting the environment. However, I think most people are interested in improving the tax base," Lorvan said.

In a campaign statement, Lorvan stressed, "We must adopt and implement a new General Plan, protecting our way of living and allowing for the growth of new business and the appropriate kinds of industry."

Lorvan said he believes light industry, such as a semi-conductor assembly plant, would be welcome at the top of the hill in Pacifica.

He foresees commercial recreation, such as motels, at the bottom of the hill. He dreams of an entertainment complex near the quarry.

"There's also the hope of us getting some major kind of single client office complex," he said. "If the plan proposed for the Cozolino property succeeds, I think it will bring further interest."

Lorvan believes it is important to create more jobs in Pacifica.

"Pacifica always has been a bedroom community and there are very few places of employment that are not keyed to serving people who live here," he said.

A side benefit of having people live and work in the same city is that they become more involved in their community, he added.

Lorvan wants more high-cost residential housing.

He explained, "We have an excellent mix of lower and middle range housing but no high-cost housing."

He believes the city might find that one rich citizen could contribute more to Pacifica than all the current neighborhood organizations combined.

"In Pacifica, we have always had higher taxes and generally fewer services, but people have been willing to accept that for the sake of living here," Lorvan said.

Now, he believes, "We must provide more of what is being provided on the other side of the hill."

He offers his accomplishments on the council during the past four years as testimony to his leadership. Despite inflation, Lorvan said, the council "has made progress toward building a tax base, has developed public recreation facilities, has protected the natural environment and has helped to bring county health and welfare services to Pacifica."

Councilwoman Fulford also claims credit for those accomplishments. In particular, she believes she was instrumental in getting county health and welfare services into Pacifica.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

El Camino Real Week At Bay Meadows

El Camino Real Week is under way at BAY MEADOWS, and it comes to a climax Saturday with the fourteenth running of the $100,000 added El Camino Real Stakes. On tap during the week long celebration is a tennis tournament, a chamber of commerce luncheon, a breakfast for owners and trainers of horses in the El Camino Stakes and a big banquet Saturday night at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel (public invited) in San Francisco, at which some of racing's outstanding personages will be honored. But the top event is the $100,000 two year old race, which is expected to lure the top freshman runners in the West, with a possibility of a few Eastern invaders. It is the third jewel in the Western triple crown for two year olds and certainly the number one event of the autumn racing season. It is expected that over the next several years, El Camino Real Week will become the most significant event of the year on the bustling San Francisco Peninsula. And it is off and running this year.

Early birds are already making reservations for Thanksgiving Day dinner at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden Restaurant in San Francisco. ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB in San Francisco is becoming as famous for its pretty waitresses as it is for its super food. Waitress Cathy Mulrine is a part-time model who was featured in a Macy's hosiery ad last week. Early Reservations For Holiday Dining YOLANDA'S restaurant, South San Francisco, is now taking reservations for Thanksgiving Day dining. Owner BOB McLANE has priced his special complete dinner at a low $3.85. In expectation of a packed house, reservations are required. THE OMELETTE HOUSE will be open Thanksgiving Day from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. featuring their regular menu. CINDY WOODMAN feels that a nice breakfast here is the right way to start out the holiday. THE TRI SOUNDS (Tom Lucia, Jack Bailey and John Gentile) will be in the spotlight tonight from 9 p.m. at BAYHILL LOUNGE, as usual. The talented group, which has been together for 15 years, welcomes song requests. DIMITRIOS FANOPOULOS will open his LE BISTRO ROUGE French restaurant for Thanksgiving dining. In addition to the regular menu, a traditional roast turkey dinner will be served. Ample free parking in the rear. THE CASTAWAY will be serving Thanksgiving Day dinners from 12 noon to 9 p.m. A special holiday menu has been planned. Early reservations are advised. Try the Sea-Steak at THE MOONRAKER in Rockaway Beach this weekend. It is broiled lobster tail with drawn butter and a New York steak broiled to your taste. Also includes a tossed salad. As for the ocean view, it is a picture to behold. All three restaurants will be open on Thanksgiving Day.

Phil's Flaming Steaks Dazzle

The gourmet flaming steak dishes prepared table-side at PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, are like an edible floor show. Flames leap skyward as waiters prepare incredible steak treats like Steak Diane and Steak Shalot right at the table. It is a feast that dazzles the eyes as well as the palate. "Dinner without wine is like a day without sunshine," is the motto on the menus at ROMANO'S restaurant, Rockaway Beach. Fine domestic wines and popular Italian labels are available. RICHARD TRAINOR will put his artistic touch to the Thanksgiving decorations at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant, which will be open as usual on Thanksgiving Day. A word to the wise: Reserve now for dinner. Although well known for seafood variety and Italian specialties, VINCE'S ITALIAN and SEAFOOD restaurant in San Mateo is the target for countless steak fanciers. The Minute Steak Bordelaise is a tender beef treat. La Donna Groves is one of the friendly waitresses who will be serving you at the VIP's restaurant in Placerville (off Highway 50), which is only one and a half hours drive from the South Lake Tahoe excitement. Menu variety, prompt service, and BARNEY'S free coupons will start your day or night with a smile. All menu items can also be prepared to go.

Ron Mingo, the world's fastest typist, came to Serramonte High School and gave a demonstration for the second and third period business classes.

Mingo, 31, types at a rate of 160 words per minute with no fewer than one error. He played professional baseball five years, non-professional (farm league) football and amateur heavyweight boxing.

He first started typing in the eighth grade. He fell in love almost immediately. His teacher told him that he would not be able to type fast because of his large build and hands. At the end of eighth grade he was typing 75 words per minute. During his high school years he took as many typing classes as possible and participated in athletics.

Mingo hopes to break the world's record of 170 words per minute on a manual typewriter, which was set in the late 1800's.

Serramonte's "spirit week" began Nov. 14. Monday was "Dress Like a Kid Day"; Tuesday was "Dress Like 50's Day"; Today is "Dress Like Twins Day"; Thursday, "Imitate a Teacher Day"; and Friday is "Spirit day". Wear school colors.

During spirit week there will be a poster competition among the classes. A $15 award will be given the class with the best poster.

Also, Nov. 18 is Homecoming. The football game will be against Jefferson High School at 3 p.m. There will be a Homecoming dance at 8 p.m. —if 125 tickets are sold by today.

The band is "Common Pleasure." The ticket prices are $2 with student body card, $2.50 without and $3 at the door, if there is a dance.

Don't forget to buy your tickets for the Dec. matinee for $1 or Friday and Saturday, Dec. 2 and 3 at 8 for $2; to see "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feeling So Sad".

Purchase tickets from English teachers at the theater or from cast members.

Le Pacini

I had been planning to do a column on Jack Burgett, Jefferson High School's remarkable, if not winning football coach, when I saw a commentary in the Jefferson school newspaper (Nov. 4 issue), the TOM-TOM, on Burgett by writer-athlete Billy Pittman, a former Jeff football player, who, because of bad knees, decided this year to forego his final football season to concentrate his energies on basketball.

The article obviously impressed me, and speaks for itself:

"Coaches of the NPL awaken!

"For far too long you have been asleep when it comes to voting for Coach of the Year. It seems that in past times the Coach of the Year has been chosen solely on the basis of his team's won-lost record. While the won-lost record should be a prime factor in the selection of Coach of the year, I think that it's time to also start looking at what the coach has done to better the image of the school and to make men out of every player associated with his organization. A man who has done such things is Mr. Jack Burgett of Jefferson High.

"Granted Coach Burgett hasn't had a championship team, or anything even close to it, but he has done some kind of job building up the Indian football program. When Burgett came here in 1974, he not only inherited a team with a losing record, he inherited a team with a losing attitude. Not only did the team lose, it seems like they expected to lose. But with hard work and an inner feeling of pride, that feeling soon changed. While the team's record wasn't that of a champion (1-8-1), each player had to feel like a champ deep down inside.

"In the past two years the Indian football program has been steadily moving upward. The team has been supplied with better equipment, better field conditions and top-notch assistant coaching.

"It's not my purpose to make Burgett sound like a superman, or to put him on some sort of pedestal. I just feel that we should give credit where credit is due. Burgett has hung tough through some of the most adverse situations.

"While coaches like Westmoor's Pete Matisi, South City's Ray Dejong and Terra Nova's Bob Lott get turnouts of 40 or more players each year, Burgett has an habitual problem of getting enough healthy bodies together just to field a team. And that's what I am trying to get across. It's easy to win championships when you can get 40 or 50 guys together who have played before, but how many men can make a group of 20 or so guys play together, even though they know they will probably be outnumbered, undersized and inexperienced? Coach Burgett can, and does."

I couldn't have said it any better, Billy. Thanks for the column.

SPEAKING OF Jefferson reminds me of Indians, and why can we still call THEM the Jefferson Indians, and still refer to the Cleveland Indians and Washington Redskins and Golden State Warriors and Atlanta Braves, et al, but we can't call Stanford the Indians?

Of course, any of you readers with a subtle turn may have noticed that I have seldom, if ever, called Stanford the Cardinals since the school was pressured by a certain paranoid group to change their image.

But then, nobody pays much attention to what I write anyway, so I've never been rebuked for my little fetich.

Just a reminder, though, that they'll always be the Stanford Indians to me, no matter how many times they get bombed by USC; and that I will retain that good and respectable nickname for Stanford as long as there are Jefferson and Cleveland Indians, and to hell with the Groups.

MISCELLANEOUS thoughts and capsule comments:

I more and more become convinced that the best way to become known as an expert on sports is to not know a whole lot about them. The less a sports columnist knows, you see, the more controversial he can be, because he will then write a lot of things which don't make a helluva lot of sense, but which do create arguments, which make the writer "colorful" and an "expert."

If he knows TOO much about a subject he will be able to see both sides, and objectivity always is dull.

I still say that Jimmy Young, who lost that split decision to Ken Norton (I think Young won by three-four points, is a black Joey Maxim. He never seems to look real good, but he always seems to make his opponent — no matter how proficient otherwise — look bad in the process.

Like Pal Joey, he isn't a very stiff puncher, but he's a fine, if not flashy boxer, and can take a hit with a brick wall. And he usually wins, the Norton decision notwithstanding.

I HAVE developed a new pet peeve — the broadcaster who no longer says that somebody was shut out or that the score was "10 to nothing" or "nine to zero," but who insists on calling no-scores, "Zip."

And zip to you, too, you illiterates!

DID YOU notice that the Yankees drafted three former players on the recent "re-entry" draft? They were pitcher Doc Medich (since signed with the Rangers) and outfielders Oscar Gamble and Elliott Maddox. And, congratulations to Cincinnati for not participating in the thing, and to the White Sox and Rangers who had the guts to participate too much, with 40 and 38 selections, respectively.

A couple of last thoughts on baseball postseason play: Wouldn't Ty Cobb have been frustrated over the crybabbling about rough baserunning? The only thing more frustrating to Cobb

Sharks Stun Half Moon Bay

By JOHN MURPHY

Oceana High's football team hasn't had too much to cheer about this football season. Until Thursday, when the Sharks dumped previously undefeated Half Moon Bay 27-0.

Half Moon Bay's loss, combined with victories by Terra Nova and South San Francisco, sets up what could be a dramatic conclusion to this year's North Peninsula League race.

HMB, Terra Nova and South City are tied for first place with 5-1 league records. If HMB defeats visiting Westmoor this Friday, then the Cougars will advance to the Central Coast Section playoffs by virtue of wins over Terra Nova and South City.

However, if the Cougars lose, then Friday night's contest in Pacifica between Terra Nova and South City will be a showdown to determine the NPL representative for the upcoming Region I playoffs.

Oceana-Half Moon Bay

The NPL season began on a sour note this year for Oceana. Not only did the Sharks drop a 24-21 decision to cross-town rival Terra Nova, but they also were informed by the NPL Board of Managers that they would be penalized for participating in an unsanctioned preseason scrimmage.

In a sense, Oceana was beginning its NPL season with an 0-2 record after one week of play (as punishment Oceana will have an additional loss tacked on to its record should it be tied with anyone at the end of the season).

But Oceana's players didn't quit. They developed into the league's leading offensive team and, Friday afternoon in Half Moon Bay, they showed how.

After a scoreless first quarter Oceana took possession on its own 44 yard line after a short HMB punt. Paced by the hard running of fullback Randy Swayne and the passing of quarterback Dan Lee, the Sharks moved steadily down the field. Finally, halfback Jaime Miranda capped the drive with an 11-yard scoring burst.

After the ensuing kickoff, Oceana safety Mark Page picked off a HMB pass at the Cougar 47. Four plays later Lee hit wide receiver Greg Piccolotti with a 22-yard scoring strike to put Oceana up 14-0 at the half.

The game's turning point was Half Moon Bay's first possession of the second half. QB Scott Mathews got the Cougars moving by mixing an occasional running play with four pass completions, totaling 52 yards. HMB pushed its way down to the Oceana one yard line but fumbled on third down and the Sharks recovered in the end zone.

It was all Oceana after that.

The Sharks added their last two touchdowns after HMB had fumbled the ball away twice inside its own 50. Swayne capped the short drives with TD runs of one and 11 yards.

The Cougars were outgained 308 to 190. Swayne led the assault, picking up 177 yards on 29 carries.

Serramonte-Westmoor

Wide receiver Rich Rogers caught three touchdown passes and had five receptions for 152 yards to pace host Westmoor to a 26-20 win over Serramonte.

Rogers' 66-yard scoring reception from quarterback Tony Limutau gave Westmoor a 6-0 first quarter lead. Then, with time running out in the half, Ram running back Mike McLennan hit Rogers with a 57-yard TD pass to put Westmoor up 20-7 at the half.

Serramonte closed to 20-14 mid-way through the third quarter on Doug Stewart's one-yard plunge, but Westmoor struck back early in the final period with an 18-yard Limutau-Rogers hookup.

The Regents cut Westmoor's lead to 26-20 with 2:43 left in the game on a 74-yard scoring pass from sub QB Bob Gradwohl to wide receiver Kevin Smith.

South City-El Camino

Flanker Glenn Kramer led South San Francisco to a 33-6 win over arch-rival El Camino Thursday night by rushing for 148 yards on just three carries, including a 58-yard touchdown run in the third period.

Kramer's 65-yard carry to open the second half set up halfback Dave Palmer's one-yard TD plunge two plays later, putting SSF up 14-0.

Kramer's 58-yard scoring run just before the end of the third quarter made it 20-0. Minutes later quarterback Karl Young scored from 18 yards out to make it 26-0.

The Warriors later added another touchdown on a 74-yard screen pass from Young to Palmer. Camino's only TD came on a 73-yard kickoff return by John Drago.

All of Kramer's runs were on reverse plays. Kramer outgained Palmer (23 carries for 83 yards) who is closing in on both NPL and school rushing records.

Terra Nova-Jefferson

Terra Nova quarterback Mike Diaz threw for one touchdown and ran for another, and running back Mike Kremes ran for two touchdowns as the Tigers ripped host Jefferson, a respectable defensive team, 44-7.

would be the rubber cleats that take the place of spikes on the unnatural turfs.

And did Mickey Rivers remind you, too, of a marionette?

Whatever happened to kids taping up old baseballs, after the covers have flown off, with black electrician's tape? Or don't kids play with baseballs long enough any more to give the covers time to fly off? Or is all the black electrician's tape now plastic? Or are the kids plastic?

I'M STILL trying to figure out why a guy as big and purportedly as tough and fearless as Evel Knievel would have to use a baseball bat on an enemy, as he allegedly did with TV executive Shelly Saltman, recently. And also use a henchman to back him up; in this case, so it is reported, to hold Saltman while Evel hit cripples off Saltman's arms. Saltman ended up in the hospital with a fractured left arm and a broken right wrist. I can only deduct that after Evel fractured Saltman's left wrist he took two and hit to right.

Knievel didn't use his head. He should have let Saltman ride double with him on his next stunt. The results would have been the same.

Evel issued a statement that Saltman's book about him, "was a personal insult . . . He accused me of being an alcoholic, a pill pusher and an immoral person."

Saltman may or may not have proven the first two, but with his attack on Saltman, Evel certainly indicated the last one.

Brown, Cap Edge Falcons

Efrim Brown is back and Capuchino High's football team is glad.

Brown had missed the first four Mid-Peninsula League games because of ineligibility, but he returned in impressive fashion Friday night against Crestmoor before a sizable crowd at Burlingame Field.

He personally ran Capuchino to its first win of the year, 13-8 over the game Falcons. The win improves Cap's record to 1-3-1 in the MPL and 1-6-1 overall. Crestmoor finishes the season at 0-6 in league and 0-7-2 overall.

The win by Cap was the 11th by the Mustangs in the traditional "Battle of San Bruno." Crestmoor has won three times. Crestmoor looked to be in the driver's seat early in the fourth quarter. Ahead 8-7, the Falcons took over after a short punt on the Cap 38.

Behind the running of fullback Anthony James, Crestmoor moved to the Cap one. But two rushes netted nothing and the Falcons faced a fourth down.

Crestmoor tried a pitch-out, but it was botched, and Tony Taylor covered it for Cap. A touchdown by the Falcons and a conversion could have put the game out of reach.

Instead Cap rallied back. The Mustangs were faced with a fourth down themselves, but got help. Quarterback Tom Fell's pass to tight end Greg Ley was short of the first down, but Crestmoor had 12 players on the field. The 15-yard penalty kept the drive going.

Sports And Recreation

On the next play, Brown blasted off left tackle. He was seemingly stopped five yards downfield, but broke clear and outran the defenders for a 44-yard TD with 3:57 left to play.

Cap scored on its first possession of the game; Fell found Jay Boragno open in the corner of the end zone, and Boragno made a fine over-the-shoulder grab for a 27-yard TD.

The Falcons took advantage of a fumbled punt at the Cap 18 to score their TD. Herrera completed his only pass of the game to Eric Wagner for the TD. Crestmoor faked the conversion kick and holder John Aquino threw to Bill Raffin for two points and the lead.

Brown paced the Cap attack with 91 yards on 16 carries. He also intercepted a pass on defense. Fell completed six of 16 passes for 107 yards, all in the first half. Ley caught three passes, leaving him one short of the MPL record, with Mills to play Saturday, Nov. 19.

SOMEBODY FIND A BUS FOR THIS HOLE

Oceana runningback Randy Swayne (40) found gaping holes like this all afternoon Thursday as he rushed for 177 yards and two touchdowns in Oceana's shocking 27-0 upset over previously unbeaten Half Moon Bay. Leading the interference for Swayne is Oceana guard Ken Van Winkle (61).

SM Recovers, Drops Mills

By DAN BERTELLOTTI

After having the football shoved down its throat in the first half, San Mateo High's defense came back to life in the second half Thursday.

The Bearcats entered Thursday's game with visiting Mills as the leading defensive team in the Mid-Peninsula League, allowing just 167 yards a game.

But Mills (2-3) ran the ball at will, netting 110 yards on 27 carries in the first half. SM (3-2) was lucky to be ahead 7-6 at intermission.

Then San Mateo's defense made its presence felt, and the Bearcats put two late scores on the board for a 22-6 win.

Mills took the opening kickoff and moved from its own 31 to the Bearcat 20. But the Vikings botched a handoff and George Bell recovered for SM. Mills had gone 67 yards in 17 plays, most of them inside of the wishbone series.

Cap Harriers Win

Capuchino High's cross-country team placed four runners in the top nine to finish first in the Mid-Peninsula League finals at the Crystal Springs course in Belmont Thursday, giving the Mustangs an outright league championship.

Cap's Rod Bewley placed second (16:00) and teammate Ross Waldring finished fifth (16:17) as the Mustangs defended their 6-0 dual meet record in commanding fashion. Second-place Aragon had a point total nearly twice Cap's, 34-67.

Mills' John Wrdzek was leading the varsity field shortly beyond the race's halfway point, but doubled up with cramps and was unable to finish the race.

The top four teams on the varsity level — Cap, Aragon, San Mateo and Hillsdale — all qualify for the Region I Finals, which will be held next Thursday at the Crystal Springs course. Burlingame's Fehhaber and Crestmoor's Alvergue qualify as individuals.

Mills had gone 6-0 on the sophomore level, but San Mateo runners placed 1-2 to help force the Vikings to settle for a co-championship.

Tiger Girls Swim Titlists

Terra Nova High's girls swim team only took two first-places Thursday, but edged Westmoor in the North Peninsula League finals at El Camino.

Westmoor scored five firsts and won the medley relay. Half Moon Bay was an easy winner in the frosh-soph division.

stopping their run-and-shoot (wide-open) offense," said San Mateo coach Dave Bralliar.

"And then they come out and run inside. Our kids weren't prepared for what happened. They were somewhat confused. But in the last half we played like we are capable of playing."

San Mateo allowed just 15 yards total in the last half and just one first down. The Vikings helped, losing three fumbles.

One of those bobbles helped SM put the game on ice. Midway through the final quarter, Mills fumbled a punt and Dennis Hughes recovered for San Mateo on the Mills 30. It took the Bearcats eight plays to cover the distance, with Graves scoring again.

Putting Away Mean Dogs

Where Vicious Animals Go to Meet Their Maker

By JOHN CURRY

A woman was walking her small dog past a house when the front door opened and out bounded a large German Shepherd, which promptly attacked the smaller dog.

While trying to fight off the bigger animal the woman herself was attacked and bitten severely around the face and neck, requiring immediate medical attention. Police and Peninsula Humane Society officers called to the scene restored order.

The small dog, with one ear hanging by a sliver of skin, and its owner survived. The big dog, after a quasi-judicial hearing, was destroyed, leaving behind a bitter owner and two recovering victims from an ugly incident authorities say never should have happened.

But it did happen, in San Mateo this summer. And it continues to happen around the county, according to the man whose job it is to take vicious animals out of circulation permanently.

William H. Renner, dog owner, Principal Sanitarian and assistant director of county Health and Welfare Department Environmental Health Division, has developed a healthy respect for the value of proper care and training of dogs. He's been passing judgment on errant animals for the last 9 of his 27 years with the county and condemns 8 to 10 dogs a year to be put to sleep, all domesticated pets with histories of repeated vicious and injuring attacks on people and other animals.

Renner supervises a crew of 17 in his sanitary inspection, enforcement and education section from the Environmental Health Division office in the County Office Building in Redwood City.

Checking restaurants, grocery stores, water supplies, insect and rodent breeding areas, chasing down food poisoning sources and enforcing truth-in-menu and other consumer protection laws are his main responsibility.

But, he says without pause, "I suspect that if someone came in here shooting a gun, it would be a dog owner."

Specifically, Renner's people must enforce county Ordinance Section 3390.8, which singles out "diseased or vicious animals" as "a menace to public health or safety."

The Humane Society, by cross-filing complaints and impounding, keeps a record of animal attacks and, when it feels the situation warrants, refers to case to Environmental Health. There are deputy hearing officers under Renner who hold official proceedings in South San Francisco, San Mateo and Redwood City periodically, with Renner himself taking the more involved or legally difficult cases.

The suspect dog usually is in custody of the Humane Society at the time of hearing, to which the dog owner and his attorney, if the owner wants legal counsel, are invited, along with the victims and witnesses.

Sworn testimony is recorded on tape and the hearing officer issues a written decision later based on his findings. He is the final authority, although his decision may be appealed in court within 30 days. No cases have been appealed yet, Renner said.

The process used to be more informal but the district attorney's office advised a year ago that the hearings should conform to legal due process standards.

It's done by the book now and the number of hearings is growing "at an unprecedented rate," Renner says.

REFORGER '77

Private Dale H. Reno, son of Mrs. Gwen LeRoy, 87 Garden Grove Drive, Daly City, recently participated with other American and allied troops in Exercise Reforger '77.

Some 12,000 U.S. based soldiers and more than 37,000 tons of equipment arrived in Europe in late August as the massive exercise got under way. After arrival, Reforger troops drew equipment from ships and from prepositioned stocks, then joined with U.S. Army Europe troops to begin the exercise.

estimating 8 to 10 per month now. Most owners have their animals returned to them, but with various conditions imposed, depending on the offense. Conditions might include that the dogs be leashed at all times, they be kept away from schools or where people gather, they undergo obedience training, etc. The hearing officers usually decree also that the next incident of attack will result in immediate impoundment.

Since neither he nor his assistants are animal control experts or legal eagles, Renner would like to see more professional help. "We don't like to do this," he says of this particular sideline. "I'd like to see a licensed veterinarian as hearing officer in these cases. But that would require funding in the budget and we haven't asked for it. We (the staff) are here, so we do it."

His most involved case so far was one that resulted in 28 pages of typed testimony from the hearing, a three-page ruling ordering a dog destroyed.

This county is tough on transgressing dogs, Renner claims. "A lot of other health departments will say 'Move the dog,' but that's just moving the problem."

That problem, he said, is the owner who doesn't train his dog, lets it run loose and is lackadaisical in disciplining the animal. "You'd be surprised at the amount of indifference by people. You try to get them to control their dogs and they just stand there and look at you," Renner commented.

Virtually of the cases he's handled have involved domestic dogs who theoretically should know better, he said. If you're bitten by a wild animal or one that doesn't carry rabies, don't expect a hearing.

Irate dog owners provide enough trouble without going after non-domesticated animals.

Renner says that every now and then a woman who regularly drowns her sorrows after having her dog destroyed will call and threaten to have.

Another time an owner pointed at him after a dog had been condemned and told Renner "If my dog goes, you go next," the health officer recalled.

Stability Details Sought

The geological stability of a steep slope site on Gellert Boulevard was the focus of a recent discussion by the Daly City Planning Commission.

The commission decided to put off for two weeks a decision on approval of a tentative subdivision map for an 80-unit condominium project after a geologist and several residents raised questions about the site.

The commission asked that the developer of the Altoserramonte project, Innisfree Companies of Sausalito, be required to submit more detailed studies of possible geological problems.

According to Daly City associate planner Tom Miller, the 8.7-acre site above a commercial area near Hickey Boulevard has been plagued by erosion problems.

Miller said the developer will be required to submit further information on how the erosion problems could be mitigated through development.

A geologist representing University Property Management, a Southern California company which owns the commercial area, asked for further evidence that the shopping area will not be subject again to the considerable flooding that occurred after hard rains last January.

Susan Sweeney and Roseanne Emerson, both members of Serramonte Homeowners, told the commission Tuesday they are concerned about possible traffic, noise, parking and appearance problems with the proposed development.

Miller said a continuing problem with the site has been the numerous owners associated with it. Much of the present severe slope was created by development of the commercial area at the bottom. The slope and commercial areas later were taken over by different owners.

In other business, the planning commission approved 4-0 the 1977 general plan, ending several months of discussion and lengthy hearings on the document.

The plan, which offers a broad look at Daly City's future, now will go to City Council. The council's discussion will begin Nov. 28.

New Teen Club Starts

In Serramonte

The Daly City Recreation Department, in cooperation with the Serramonte Homeowners Association, has announced organization of a new Teen Club in the Serramonte Area. The initial meeting is open to all interested junior and senior high school teenagers and parents and will be Dec. 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the Serramonte Library in Gellert Park, 40 Wembly Drive, Daly City.

The program is planned to provide service projects as well as recreational activities on a twice-a-month basis. Teen worker Ken Duart, a senior recreation major at San Francisco State University, will be head advisor of the club. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Charlie Smithson, recreation supervisor, at 992-5350.

CSM Course Teaches Use of Tear Gas

(Editor's Note: State law which took effect July 1 allows citizens who take a Department of Justice approved course to carry tear gas for self-defense. They must also be free of felony convictions and purchase approved canisters.)

By DUANE G. SANDUL
Kellie Coyne of San Carlos is a travel agent. A woman with attractive long hair, she said she "feels helpless running around" without a defensive device. She is out alone frequently.

"The thought of getting a gun freaks me out," she said. "Guns scare me."

So, she was one of 33 persons recently who attended a chemical agent course at College of San Mateo, the second of several scheduled monthly until next March.

The chemical agent is tear gas, commonly referred to by a brand name—Mace.

"I think it would freak some guy out if a chick suddenly squirted him with tear gas," said Ms. Coyne. "He'd probably go bonkers."

As Kellie Coyne finished her explanation of why she was enrolling in the tear gas course, San Mateo Police Lt. Michael Bonnie assumed command of the class.

"There is a growing community desire for this course, presumably to get the device," Bonnie began.

"A new law, Penal Code Section 12403.7, governs the sale, manufacture, content and use of tear gas. The law is provided to allow citizens to carry tear gas approved by the Department of Justice for defense purposes only," Bonnie said.

Bonnie, an easy going man wearing a Hawaiian-style shirt and relating to the assortment of citizens as "one of them" rather than as a "cop," was interrupted. He had asked persons to feel free to interrupt. They frequently did.

"Senior citizens are having lots of troubles with thugs," said an elderly man. "One of every 10 senior citizens have sprays from pet shops (designed to deter dogs)."

"People don't know if they can use it legally," the man continued, showing obvious concern over his safety.

"You can, it's not a chemical agent," Bonnie responded.

"To possess tear gas without a permit is a felony," Bonnie asserted. "Federal Laboratory mini-streamer model 232 is the only one (of the chemical agents) approved by the state for citizen use."

"The law enforcement community is concerned about this new law," the lieutenant said. "Tear gas is now harder to get than guns... you have the potential to go to prison for carrying it without a permit (which is granted for taking the course)."

"I'm taking this course because of my general fear of walking around at night," said Cathy Chowenhill of Redwood City. "I abhor guns."

Bonnie levels with the class.

"When police now see tear gas available for the common market, they see it first going to citizens for self-defense, as it is designed, then going to the hands in which we don't want it—the criminal element."

Don Wilkes, a Redwood City police sergeant, is aware of that eventuality too.

But he looks at it this way: "I'd rather be squirted with tear gas in the face than get a .44-caliber bullet in my stomach."

"I think it has some dangerous aspects to it," said Sheriff John R. McDonald Jr., the person whom county police chiefs have authorized for the "one-stop" permit station after citizens take the tear gas course and need fingerprint screening.

"I agree with a non-lethal weapon concept, but I'm fearful of it getting into the hands of children and into the hands of people it shouldn't," McDonald added, "including mentally-disordered people and people who would use it criminally. But I agree with the concept of the law and for what it's designed—self-defense for citizens... only time will tell."

"Police," Bonnie said, "see this being turned around and used against them."

He is again interrupted by a student, another elderly citizen.

"We're interested in being protected from attacks, mugging and purse snatchers," the man said. "Tear gas appears to be the only weapon we can carry to protect ourselves."

"Some police officers' reluctance is that they're viewing another weapon which can be used against them," Bonnie resumed.

"I look at it this way," he continued. "We have the law whether the police chiefs like it or not... so we (police) should get in at the initial step to assure proper training."

Which Michael Bonnie

spent four hours trying to do.

"I'm cashier at this college (San Mateo), that's why I'm taking the course," offered Rosalie Coyne at a break. "I'm taking it in case of a hold-up of the office... I'd use it with discretion anywhere."

"A lot of the effectiveness of tear gas has to do with psychological effects of the device," Bonnie asserted. "Physiologically, it is nothing more than a facial irritant. It stuns."

"You do not have to get it in a person's eyes to be effective," the lieutenant explained. "When sprayed in the face, eyes will tear up, the nose will run and the tears will begin to literally flow very hard."

"The ideal behind using tear gas as a citizen is to stop the person's aggressive behavior, and give you an opportunity to escape. Do not try to tackle the individual. Its effects are not that long, lasting from three to 15 minutes."

You don't have to spray very much."

"I'm taking this course to hopefully protect myself from attacks," said Laura Oakley of San Mateo. "I've been attacked twice before, but not raped. So I've also recently taken karate."

"Basically," Lt. Bonnie resumed, "tear gas irritates facial nerve endings, eyes and the nose. It won't work on drunks or persons with mental disorders. And it simply won't work on some people."

"So the device won't be 100 percent effective."

"My wife and I are taking this course because we feel it will give us an ease of mind so that we can have something defensive when we walk at night," explained Robert Corbin of San Mateo. "My mother was mugged in San Francisco in a purse snatch."

"I'm taking this course," added Cliff Lindquist of San Mateo, "because I'm interested in the training."

200 Applaud 'Open' Decision

By TERRY DAVENPORT
Although most of the 200 persons at a public hearing of the Millbrae School District Monday were declaring their support for Chadbourne School, two trustees announced that they favor closing that school to cope with declining enrollment.

It was the fourth of six meetings designed to air public opinion on the possible closure of three schools.

Facing a crowd that had just cited numerous reasons for keeping Chadbourne open, Trustee Gerald Poppers said, "I will now walk into the line of 'jaws,'" and stated that he advocates closing Chadbourne, Highlands and Glen Oaks schools.

Trustee David Lohman phrased his proposal more positively, noting that he prefers keeping open Green Hills, Loma Park, Meadows, Spring Valley, Highlands and Taylor schools.

Chadbourne proponents pounced on Poppers and Lohman, demanding that they explain their reasons for wanting to close Chadbourne.

Poppers said he believes his plan would be the least disruptive to the district. "The quality of the program at Chadbourne has nothing to do with the decision," he added.

Poppers continued, "I don't know of any other school district that has gone through all the actions this board has gone through to involve the public in this decision. . . . I don't know how we can be any more honest, sincere and open in our decision-making process."

There was loud applause. Lohman said he spent many nights figuring out which schools to close. He prefers keeping Taylor as a junior high school, "if we can continue the academics."

Board Chairman Theodore Dimitre reiterated his position that Taylor Intermediate School should be closed, and that other schools in the district be converted for students up to the eighth grade.

In his plan, Dimitre envisions having two schools operate alternative programs on a back-to-basics plan, the other a progressive, open classroom.

He stressed that the savings to the district would be essentially the same: $166,000 for closing Taylor, compared to $180,000 for closing three elementary schools.

Trustee Bonnie Bertetta said she has been agonizing over the decision, but — like Trustee Melvin Pincus, who was absent from the

It identified the other driver as Howard Linton Clark Jr., 26, of 1230 Whipple Ave., Redwood City.

Volleyball 13-0 Coach Isn't Happy

South San Francisco High rolled up another win over punchless Half Moon Bay in straight games, 15-0, 15-1, Monday on the coast-side to up its North Peninsula League record to a spotless 13-0.

So you would think things would be rosy in the Warriors camp? "No," said SSF coach Ann Stuka dasky. "We are not playing like we should be going into our last and probably toughest match of the year and right before the finals. No one wants to work. We aren't progressing or developing at all. We just aren't there mentally."

Streiking Westmoor decked skidding Serramonte in three, 15-10, 13-15, 15-4, as senior setter Gigi Hawkins socked in six straight points in the last game to ice the match for the Rams.

SSF and the Rams clash in a season finale scheduled for Wednesday at 3:15 p.m. at SSF. And there's always that nine-year, undefeated, SSF win streak at stake.
